

John Heath, of Whitewater, sends some samples of Little May wheat, some grown on bottom lands and some on upland, the best being that grown on the upland. The upland wheat has the largest heads and is the best filled, which would certainly go to show that our prairies are good for wheat.