John Heath was hauled home in a wagon Saturday afternoon. He had driven the sorrel and cart to El Dorado in the morning, but parted company with the horse and cart on the road from there where he was picked up almost dead. The sorrel arrived home minus the cart, which was found on the road very little damaged. But poor John is in a very critical condition, having sustained severe injuries in the chest and on the left hip altogether rendering breathing and moving difficult and painful.
