

—Will Shepherd, of Wilmington, narrowly escaped having an arm broken one day last week. He was putting a barrel of molasses into the cellar when one of the scantlings broke letting it fall upon his arm, bruising it considerably, so much so that he was unable to use it for several days.